51st Rose Show—Another BGRS Success!!!

Thanks to the efforts of all the members of the Bowling Green Rose Society, we had another successful rose show on May 31. With exhibitors from the Louisville and Nashville Rose Societies, along with our own members, the tables were filled with many beautiful roses.

Roses from the show were taken by Jim Manley and legion members to veterans in local nursing homes. (photo below)

From the President—Mary Ann Hext, CR

Thanks to everyone for helping BGRS to have another successful rose show. We actually had more roses than expected and several of our members won ribbons and awards. We were fortunate to have several out-of-town exhibitors along with our own members who brought lots of roses to help fill the tables. After the show, all roses were taken to local nursing homes by members of the American Legion to distribute to veterans and other residents.

Our "after the rose show dinner" was a potluck at our home which was well attended and we had lots of delicious food. We had a short tour of the roses and other landscape plants and saw examples of spider mite damage and powdery mildew (the first year I have ever had this).

Brenda Coffey reported that she had seen the first Japanese beetles on her roses on June 16. So far they have not made it to Rockfield, but it could be that since I have no blooms from having cut for two rose shows, they just passed on by my yard.

Our next garden meeting is at the home of Kathy Dodson on Tuesday evening, July 1 at 6:30 pm. She will be serving homemade ice cream, so you will to be there as she makes awesome ice cream. Please bring 10-12 cookies or brownies to share. Also remember to bring roses for our in-club competition.

July Rose Tips from Noah Wilson, Holstein Rose Society

Things I am doing to my roses in July.

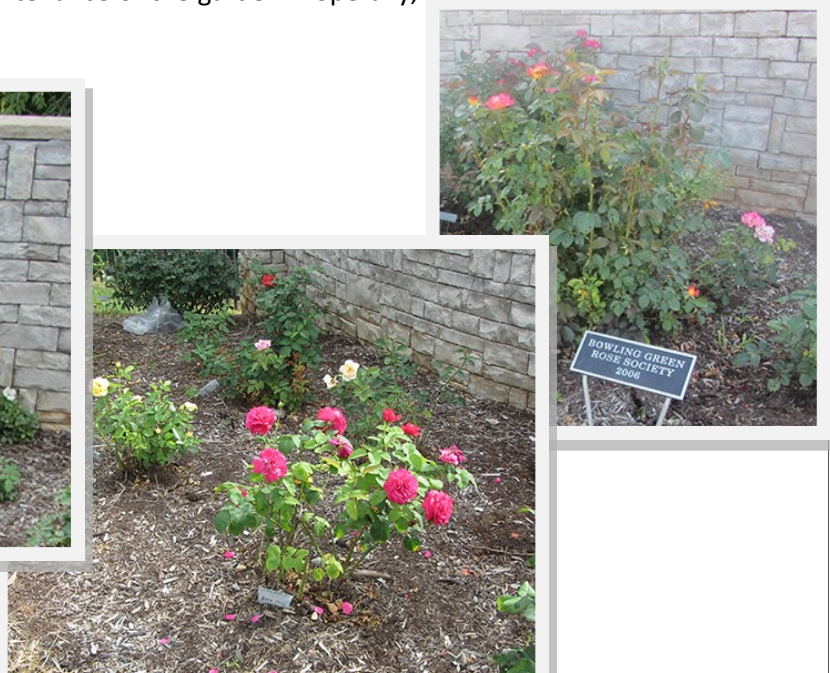

1. With hot, dry weather I will water and water. I always say if God does not send an inch of rain per week, I make it rain by watering. If, God sends ½ inch I give them another ½ inch.
2. Dead head all old blooms and seal the ends with an exterior glue.
3. Continue to spray with a good fungicide on a regular basis to keep blackspot away.
4. Spray also with a good miticide for spider mites, or spray under the lower leaves with a strong water wand to wash them off.
5. Bottom prune roses by cutting out all weak canes and pulling leaves and unwanted canes off, up to about 12 to 16 inches high from the ground. This will open the area and allow sunshine and air to circulate.
6. Pick Japanese beetles off, and place in a container of water to drown.. I prefer not to use an insecticide for these as they have to eat a great deal of the roses to get enough insecticide to kill them.
7. Pull away mulch and feed with BLOOMKOTE, which is a 90 day fertilizer. Or, if you use a 30 day fertilizer, use this monthly. Also, add a supplemental feeding of EASY FEED, plus about 2 cups of MILLS MAGIC MIX per large bush scratched into the soil around the bush drip line.
8. If I see any leaves light colored and anemic, add 1 teaspoon iron chelate (Sequestrane 330) per gallon water sprinkled around the drip line of the bush.
9. Check my mulch and add where needed to maintain a good 3 or 4 inches of mulch over my garden soil.
10. Now, I will sit back and enjoy my roses, share them with friends, and encourage others to begin this hobby of growing roses which I have enjoyed for many years.

BGRS Public Garden Report by Mary Ann Hext,CR

Bob Jacobs and I worked at the public rose garden on the morning of June 16. Roses were deadheaded and weeds were pulled. A 'Rainbow Knockout' was planted in an empty space near the wall. The roses looked good although there are a couple that will need to be watched to be sure they don't have rose rosette. We think that the deformed looking growth may be due to overspray from weed killer being used on the Bermuda grass at the park. I have been back three times to water the new rose and it is blooming and hasn't wilted in spite of the weather .

We still need to apply liquid fertilizer and fungicide and to attach the growing canes of 'Sally Holmes' to the wall behind the rose garden so it can climb.

Plans will be made to go in July for regular maintenance of the garden. Hopefully, other members will be able to help.
